

Dr. Meda Chesney-Lind

Meda Chesney-Lind, author of Girls, Delinquency, and Juvenile Justice and professor emerita of Women's Studies at the University of Hawaii, is nationally recognized for her work on women and crime, and particularly girls and juvenile justice. In 2013, the Western Society of Criminology named an award after her honoring "significant contributions to the fields of gender, crime and justice" and made her the inaugural recipient. In 2019, she served as President of the American Society of Criminology.