

Dennis Kennedy, a pioneering expert in legal technology and innovation, focuses on the intersection of AI and the law. He is the Director of Michigan State University's Center for Law, Technology & Innovation, where he teaches courses on AI and the Law. He also teaches the course “Legal Technology Literacy and Leadership” at the University of Michigan Law School. A retired in-house technology counsel for Mastercard and former author of the ABA Journal's technology column, Dennis brings a practical, real-world perspective to the challenges facing courts today. He received the 2024 Lifetime

Achievement Award at the American Legal Technology Awards, is a Fellow of the College of Law Practice Management, and co-hosts the long-running legal technology podcast, The Kennedy-Mighell Report, and the monthly webcast Legal AI Live. His latest book is Successful Innovation Outcomes in Law.
